Imagining a hexagonal library

This workshop puts into practice the systemic vision of the hexagonal model, which invites us to think of libraries as learning spaces and communities through six vectors: open, mix, streamline, prototype, collaborate and digitise, mix, streamline, prototype, collaborate and digitise.

Participants will carry out an initial diagnosis and, from there, will apply some techniques of design techniques to project what this hexagonal library could look like. All this will be done through agile dynamics focused on action.
